London, Dec. 11.—The German cruiser Nurnberg, which withdrew from the battle off the Falkland islands Tuesday, was hunted across the water by units of the British fleet and sunk the same day.

The battle in which the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Leipzig were sent to the bottom, according to an admiralty report, lasted five hours with intervals.

The Scharnhorst sank in three hours and the Gneisenau two hours later. No loss of any British vessel has been reported by the admiralty.

British Fleet Traps German Ship in Straits of Magellan.

Buenos Ayres, Argentina, Dec. 11.—The German cruiser Dresden, the only warship of Admiral Count von Spee's squadron to escape after the battle with the British squadron under command of Admiral Sir Frederick Sturdee, has been cornered in the Straits of Magellan, according to advices obtained through well informed circles.

The naval division commanded by Admiral Sturdee is understood to include nine warships, notably the British battle cruisers Lion and Indefatigable.

The British battle cruisers Lion and Indefatigable, reported to be part of Vice Admiral Frederick Sturdee's squadron, displace 26,350 tons and 18,750 tons, respectively. The Lion carries 1,000 men.

The battle cruiser Indefatigable is 578 feet long, 79½ feet beam and 27½ feet deep. It has a speed of 26 knots. It has a complement of 800 officers and men.

ALLIES ARE MAKING GAINS

Retain Positions Recently Taken From the Germans.

London, Dec. 11.—While the defeat of the German squadron in the South Atlantic has evoked the liveliest satisfaction throughout Great Britain there have been no celebrations such as marked the victories of the South African war, the British people being too much wrapped up in the operations of the allied armies on the continent.

The lack of news from Poland causes some uneasiness regarding the result of the prolonged battle between the Russians and Germans, but the reports from France are considered here to be most favorable to the allies.

The report from French headquarters adds little to the general knowledge, as it says the situation is unchanged, which indicates, however, that the positions taken have been maintained. Berlin, on the other hand, states that the French attacks in the Argonne have been repulsed.

TO EXTEND OUR DOMINION

Congressman Would Claim Polar Lands Discovered by Americans.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Extension of the dominion of the United States to the frozen lands and seas surrounding the North pole was proposed in a joint resolution introduced in the house by Representative Smith of New York.

The measure would provide "that the priority of the discovery of the North pole be established and declared by congress, so that those lands discovered by Americans in the Far North may be designated and described as the territory of the United States."

General Beyer's Body Found.

Pretoria, Dec. 11.—The body of General Christian Beyer, the rebel leader who was drowned while attempting to escape across the Vaal river from government troops, has been found at Vliegkrall not far from the spot where General Beyer was seen to sink. SUBMARINES NEAR DOVER

Germans Fail in Effort to Raid English Harbor.

Dover, Eng., Dec. 11.—Dover was thrown into excitement by the announcement that the Germans attempted a submarine attack on the harbor works and the fleet at anchor in the harbor.

The night was very dark and a heavy rain and haze made searchlight work difficult. Fortunately the forts were put on the alert by the appearance of the harbor entrance of an unidentified steamer which refused to stop until a shot was fired across her bow.

This vessel then retired. She is believed to have been the tender of the submarines.

Half an hour later, it is said, a single submarine was sighted and one of the heavy guns in the harbor fired at her. This submarine, which evidently was the advance scout, disappeared, but the observers sighted what they believed to be a fleet of about six submarines several miles out in the channel.

Warns Mexican Factions Not to Fire Over Line.

NO TIME LIMIT IS FIXED

Emphatic and Threatening Expression From the Washington Government Is Sent in Identical Notes to Provisional President Gutierrez and General Carranza.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The United States has served formal notice on both Provisional President Gutierrez and General Carranza that unless they promptly prevent their troops from firing across the American boundary such force will be employed by this government as may be necessary to protect American territory.

In the most emphatic and threatening expression from the Washington government since the diplomatic demand on General Huerta which preceded the occupation of Vera Cruz identical warning was sent to the chiefs of the two factions opposing each other at Naco, across from the Arizona town of the same name, that firing across the international line must cease.

The message to both Carranza and Gutierrez pointed out that several Americans had died of wounds received from bullets which were fired from Mexican territory and that the United States has appealed in vain to Generals Maytorena and Hill, commanding the rival forces at Naco, to so regulate their fire as to prevent a repetition of such occurrences.

Having failed to impress Hill and Maytorena the Washington government stated that it naturally must turn to the respective chiefs to whom the contending generals are supposed to owe allegiance.

If the chiefs in de facto in control cannot put an end to the reckless firing by their subordinates the United States government pointed out unequivocally that its manifest duty, much to its regret, will be to take such steps as may be necessary to protect American lives throughout by the employment of force.

No time limit was set.

The president said he would be unable to get to Minnesota at the time, as he had already planned to spend a part of March and April in the Panama canal zone.

DIES SUDDENLY AT WASHINGTON

Congressman Sereno E. Payne Answers Last Call.

SEVENTY-ONE YEARS OF AGE

Veteran New Yorker Had Sat in Every Congress Except One Since 1883. Was Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and Republican Leader and Directed Drafting of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Bill.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Representative Sereno E. Payne of New York died suddenly of heart disease at his apartment here.

Mr. Payne had retired to his room apparently in robust health. He telephoned the apartment house clerk later asking that a physician be sent for. When the clerk reached the room the congressman was dying and life was extinct before the doctor arrived.

Mr. Payne, who was seventy-one years old, lived alone. His wife died three years ago and no one could be found who knew the address of his only son.

A representative from New York in every congress since 1883, except one, Mr. Payne was chairman of the ways and means committee and Republican floor leader in 1909-10 and directed the drafting of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

He was born at Hamilton, N. Y., June 26, 1843.

As one of the foremost tariff authorities in congress Mr. Payne was a notable figure among the Republicans of the house long before he became chairman of the ways and means committee and framed the original of the Republican tariff doctrines which stood until repealed by the Underwood law.

His age was beginning to tell, however, and of late he had not infrequently dozed quietly in his chair in the house chamber for a few moments at a time during a day's session.

SET GUN KILLS STRANGER

Young Montana Homesteader Sentenced to Prison.

Plentywood, Mont., Dec. 11.—John K. Jensen, a homesteader, twenty-five years old, must serve eighteen months in the penitentiary as a result of his conviction on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Jensen owned a claim near Homestead and lived alone. He was afraid of intruders and arranged a mechanical contrivance which would fire a shotgun if anyone attempted to open his shack door at night or in his absence.

When Jensen was away from home a stranger, who has never been identified, attempted to open the door and received the charge of buckshot in the face, causing instant death.

SLAYS WIDOW AND HIMSELF

Man Kills Woman When Ordered From Kitchen.

Atwater, Minn., Dec. 11.—Gust Palm shot Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett, a widow, twice and then went outside and shot himself through the head. Palm died instantly and Mrs. Bennett died half an hour later. No motive can be learned.

Mrs. Bennett formerly lived at Hutchinson and has been running a restaurant here since last spring. Palm entered Mrs. Bennett's kitchen and she ordered him out. As she turned away he shot her.

Palm's only known relative is a son in Sweden. His wife is dead. He was forty-four years old. He worked for a farmer two miles south of Atwater.

STATE TO GROW MORE CORN

North Dakota's Income From Cereal This Year Is $7,860,000.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 11.—Thirteen million bushels of corn were raised in North Dakota this year, according to the North Dakota Development league bureau in Grand Forks.

The value of the corn is fixed at approximately $7,860,000, or $2,784,000 more than a year ago. The total production of this year is approximately 2,300,000 bushels more than last year. In the last four years the increase in corn has been exceptionally great and is largely the result of the widespread better farming movement.

There is a growing desire among farmers to diversify and although there will be strong arguments in favor of a greater wheat acreage next year, because of prices created by the European war, still there is every indication of a corn increase.

He was born at Hamilton, N. Y., June 26, 1843.

As one of the foremost tariff authorities in congress Mr. Payne was a notable figure among the Republicans of the house long before he became chairman of the ways and means committee and framed the original of the Republican tariff doctrines which stood until repealed by the Underwood law.

His age was beginning to tell, however, and of late he had not infrequently dozed quietly in his chair in the house chamber for a few moments at a time during a day's session.

SET GUN KILLS STRANGER

Young Montana Homesteader Sentenced to Prison.

Plentywood, Mont., Dec. 11.—John K. Jensen, a homesteader, twenty-five years old, must serve eighteen months in the penitentiary as a result of his conviction on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Jensen owned a claim near Homestead and lived alone. He was afraid of intruders and arranged a mechanical contrivance which would fire a shotgun if anyone attempted to open his shack door at night or in his absence.

When Jensen was away from home a stranger, who has never been identified, attempted to open the door and received the charge of buckshot in the face, causing instant death.

SLAYS WIDOW AND HIMSELF

Man Kills Woman When Ordered From Kitchen.

Atwater, Minn., Dec. 11.—Gust Palm shot Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett, a widow, twice and then went outside and shot himself through the head. Palm died instantly and Mrs. Bennett died half an hour later. No motive can be learned.

Mrs. Bennett formerly lived at Hutchinson and has been running a restaurant here since last spring. Palm entered Mrs. Bennett's kitchen and she ordered him out. As she turned away he shot her.

Palm's only known relative is a son in Sweden. His wife is dead. He was forty-four years old. He worked for a farmer two miles south of Atwater.

STATE TO GROW MORE CORN

North Dakota's Income From Cereal This Year Is $7,860,000.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 11.—Thirteen million bushels of corn were raised in North Dakota this year, according to the North Dakota Development league bureau in Grand Forks.

The value of the corn is fixed at approximately $7,860,000, or $2,784,000 more than a year ago. The total production of this year is approximately 2,300,000 bushels more than last year.

In the last four years the increase in corn has been exceptionally great and is largely the result of the widespread better farming movement.

There is a growing desire among farmers to diversify and although there will be strong arguments in favor of a greater wheat acreage next year, because of prices created by the European war, still there is every indication of a corn increase.

DULUTH WOMAN PUBLISHES
VOLUME OF MINN. VERSE

MRS. GUY E. FINCH

"A MINNESOTA CHRISTMAS"

Title of a Volume of Verse Published by May Stanley, a Charming Writer of Duluth

A little volume of Minnesota verse has been published by May Stanley (Mrs. Guy E. Finch), a Duluth writer and of the book the Duluth Herald says that the poems are chiefly of the Northern Minnesota woods and canoe trails, and are marked by their catchy rhythm. They deal with a new and promising field for the writer and poet.

In the dedication to the volume Mrs. Finch addresses herself to the pioneers of Northern Minnesota and says:

"These, my little verses, are for you, these are the dreams your dim woods gave me, and the song I heard your pine trees whisper all night long by the still lakes. If they are true, if they have any beauty, or have blent the myriad voices of the northern land Ever so faintly, you will understand—And I shall be content."

Many of the verses were first published in the Duluth News Tribune, the Pictorial Review and the Blue Bird magazines. Mrs. Finch is a valued contributor to the Sunday edition of the Duluth News Tribune. Decorations of the book are by Arthur G. McCoy. The book was printed by the O. F. Collier Press of Duluth.

For those who have spent pioneer days in Crow Wing county or in the west or the wilds of the Arctic these verses entitled "The Trail-Maker" convey a particular appeal.

"I blazed the road, with my pack sack load
Of bacon and beans and ax—
Were the men of the northern tracks.

I ran my lines through the stately pines
With their needle-scented floor,
And after me then came the railroad men—
But nobody went before.

For cook and crew and surveyor, too,
Were the men of the northern tracks.

I caught the red of the iron-ore bed
Up on the Vermilion way,

And the miners came to my virgin claim—
But it wasn't for me to stay.

So I led the race that had turned its face
To the north wood's timber store,

And I lay my head on a balsam bed
That had never been pressed before

And I traced to their heads new river beds,
And the vision came to me

How their waves would strive with the pine-log drive
For the cities yet to be.

But today the spans of your iron bands
Have covered the country here,

And I want to go to a land I know
And find me a new frontier.

And I want to camp where the air grows damp
With the scent I used to hail

When the birch-fire lay at the close of day—
I'm hungry to hit the trail."

Other titles of verses are "The Harbor," "Drifting," "Water Voices," "The Weavers," "The Mother Dream," "The Mother," "Wood Magic."

One will be well repaid reading the book of verses and charmed also to see Minnesota etched in lulling poetry, true to nature, and like nature, free, untrammelled, breathing the mystery of woods, dales, trails, lake and river.

The Childrens Hour

The childrens show given at the Columbia theatre last Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Childrens Hour, proved so much of a success that Edwin Harris Bergh has decided to run the same sort of a show every Saturday afternoon.

The aim in these shows is to select films of an educational order and to avoid those which are too exciting or containing scenes not suited to children. The grown people present said the films were all that could be desired, and judging from the applause and expressions of delight the show was more popular with the children than usual.

The children seemed to appreciate the music too quite as much as their elders. There was a violin solo by Mr. Bergh and a trio by Mr. Bergh, Miss Wood and Mr. Witham. The audience all joined in a verse of "America," which had been thrown on the screen.

This show is of the kind recommended by our juvenile court judges and others interested in the welfare of our future citizens, and it behooves us in Brainerd to support Mr. Bergh in this latest undertaking in which he himself is thoroughly interested. If this Saturday afternoon show becomes a permanently established one, parents and teachers may find themselves compelled to attend if they would keep up with the youngsters in their knowledge of wild animals, foreign places and peoples and other interesting subjects.

Tomorrow the films will include fishes beneath the water, scenes in Rome, coast towns of France, pearls of phosphorous and scenes from Constantinople. The comedy is all about how the children got up a circus. The show begins at 2:30 and 3:30.

The show a week from tomorrow will be under the auspices of the Childrens Hour, half of the profits to be devoted to the Associated Charities. At a later date there will be another for the benefit of an "Open Library Every Day."

MUSIC AND DRAMA

At the Grand

The story opens in the training camp of Kid Regan, who is scheduled to meet "Sailor" Brown, the holder of the middleweight championship and considers Kid Regan an easy mark, so neglects his training. He is backed by Whitney, a typical sport. Whitney is attracted to Mrs. Johnson, a young widow with a son five years old. He uses every means to bring the widow into his clutches, and the widow repulses every advance. Kid Regan adheres to his training religiously, and it is during one of his daily runs in the country that he sees Whitney, half intoxicated, with a girl in his car, run over a boy. The victim is Mrs. Johnson's son, George. Whitney attempts to run away after hitting the boy. Kid Regan seeks to interfere, but his trainer restrains him with the words, "You must take care of your hands, Kid." Kid takes the boy to the hospital, where he meets Mrs. Johnson. They strike up a friendship, which soon ripens into love. Whitney arranges to dope Kid by putting an opiate on the sponge to be used by Kid during the fight. Little George, who has been taken to the dressing room, finds the sponge and would play with it, but the careful trainer finds it and decides that this same sponge will be unfit for use. Accordingly he throws it away and puts in a new one. Kid Regan knocks out Sailor Brown. After the fight Kid finds Bud in his room trying to escape through a window. Bud confesses, and it is then that Whitney receives a sound thrashing from Kid Regan's hands. Not only does Kid Regan win the fight, but also his sweetheart.

Cancels Engagement

Manager E. A. Adams, of the Park theatre, in a statement made, said that the engagement of the "New York's Society Life and Underworld" has been canceled owing to the films being misrepresented and in bad condition. In future, said Mr. Adams, all films will be previously run privately in order to pass on them before exhibition.

DISPATCH WANT ADS PAY

VERA CRUZ HAS
LOTS OF MONEY

But It Is of Many Kinds and Needs Censor.

ACCEPT CONFEDERATE BILL.

For Price of Two Two Cent Postage Stamps One May Buy His Breakfast. American Money Three Times as Valuable as Mexican Scrip—Secret Service Watchful.

For the price of two two-cent postage stamps one may get a breakfast of coffee and sweet bread in Vera Cruz these days, for with an American dollar, worth five times as much as a Mexican peso (and they are of the same size, too), two two-cent American stamps are worth 20 centavos in Mexican money, which is a sufficient sum to buy the coffee and bread. That is the price in the lesser portales, the sidewalk restaurant and drinking place just off the Plaza de la Constitucion and opposite the ancient parochial church, which in 1734 was dedicated to Nuestra Senora de la Asuncion—Our Lady of the Assumption.

In these portales the men of the middle classes and the enlisted men of the American army and navy sit about the tables and drink their coffee or beer or what they please, while in the next block, under the portales of the Hotel Diligencias, facing the plaza, the Mexican refugees of substance, the erstwhile federal generals, the científicos, the ousted officeholders under Victoriano Huerta and the officers of the United States army and navy do likewise, albeit not quite so cheaply, for it will take the price of three two-cent postage stamps to get the coffee and sweet bread in the Diligencias portales.

Not that the coffee is a bit better in one place than in the other, and the bread all comes from the same bakeries. It is all a matter of caste and location, just as one may get the same beer downtown in New York for 5 cents a glass that he must pay 25 cents for in a marble tiled and gilded cafe of some ultra fashionable hotel uptown. In both portales the coffee is black as ink and strong as aqua fortis.

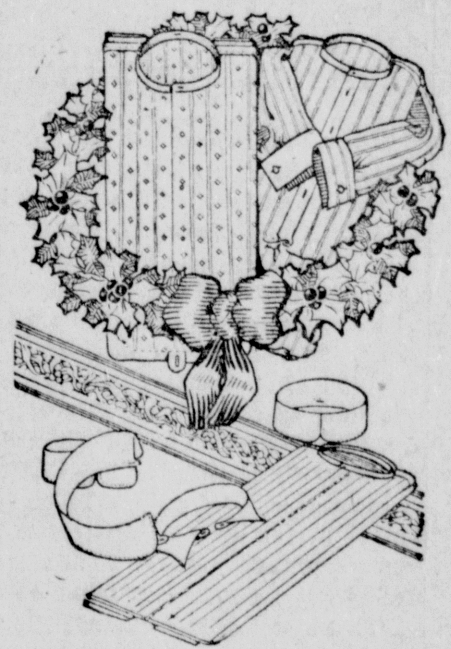

Gold Buys More.

But for all this the cost of living is much higher in Vera Cruz than it used to be—before the American occupation of the port. That is, it is far higher in Mexican money and much cheaper in gold money. When a Mexican peso was worth 50 cents gold one could buy the coffee and bread for 15 centavos instead of the 20 it costs now, but then it would have cost 7½ cents in American money instead of the 4 cents it costs now, with exchange at five to one.

Two years ago the Mexican who was making $50 a week in Mexican money was getting the same as the American who was earning $25 a week gold. Now, supposing each gets the same salary; the Mexican still has his 50 pesos a week, and the American with his $25 gold has 125 pesos, two and a half times as much as the Mexican. If the Mexican has to pay 5 pesos a day to support his family he has only 15 pesos a week left over, but the American after paying out 5 pesos a day has 90 pesos left over.

All sorts of Mexican money passes

Creamettes

Builds Sturdy Bodies

SOME mothers feed their children Creamettes three times a day. This new more tender macaroni product is the ideal substitute for meat.

The ordinary macaroni, as you know, takes from 30 to 35 minutes to cook. Creamettes cooks to a delicious tenderness in from 5 to 8 minutes. Creamettes is made from the creamy parts of Durum wheat and has a rich new flavor all its own. Try it with cheese, with ham, with tomatoes, with bacon, or with nuts.

MOTHER'S MACARONI CO., MINNEAPOLIS

Also makers of Mother's Macaroni, Mother's Vermicelli, Mother's Spaghetti and Mother's Egg Noodles. Look for the package with the Creamette Cook.

In Vera Cruz nowadays at its race value, no matter whether it is in the form of National bank bills, Huertista bills, which were printed by the millions in the City of Mexico, or the Constitutional bills of Carranza or Villa. The fractional currency bills are even more varied, but no one ever thinks of refusing one, no matter by whom issued. Many are issued by local banks in Vera Cruz. Others are in the form of tickets—very like milk tickets in the United States. All are equally good here. Street car fares are 6 centavos, or 1 1/5 cents gold. A first class fare from Vera Cruz to the City of Mexico, including a berth in a Pullman, costs $19.00 Mexican, or $3.92 American money, for an all night or all day journey.

Confederate Bill Passed. A twenty dollar Confederate bill was passed the other day at a curio store, and the man who passed it received 2 pesos' worth of merchandise and 98 pesos in money. The curio dealer was greatly surprised when he was told that the Confederate bill was worth only a few cents as a curiosity. Any piece of paper looking like a bank bill and printed in English, with figures on it, would pass for its alleged face value here among the Mexicans. It would not have to be counterfeit money. Stage money, advertisements, any old thing that looked like money would do. Luckily for the Mexicans, there is a first class secret service here under the American rule, and suspicious characters are hustled out of the port as quickly as they are spotted. If it were not for this Vera Cruz would be a paradise just now for "shovers of the queer" and green goods artists.

Albion and Columbia. "Albion, the Gem of the Ocean," was written and composed by Jesse Hammond, an English government dock official, about 1820 and was heard above all others in the theaters, music halls and on London streets.

It is apparent that "gem of the ocean" fits an island more aptly than our large tract of continent, and "borne by the red and the blue" (the red of the British army and blue of the navy) is more logical than the meaningless line "borne by the red, white and blue." The lines of the English song are almost word for word identical with our version, "The Red, White and Blue."—Exchange.

Spots Removed While You Sleep.

Dill—Has your wife a recipe for removing spots from clothing? Pickle—I should say she had! She removed two five spots from my trousers pocket with quietness and dispatch last night.—Judge.

Foiled. Noiselessly, but with all his might, the burglar tugged at the dressing table drawer. In vain. "Give it another jerk," said a voice behind him. The burglar turned. The owner of the house was sitting up in bed and looking at him with the deepest interest. "Jerk it again. There's a lot of valuable property in that drawer, but we haven't been able to open it since the damp weather began. If you can pull it out I'll give you a handsome royalty on everything that's"—But the burglar had jumped out through the window, taking a part of the sash with him.—Exchange.

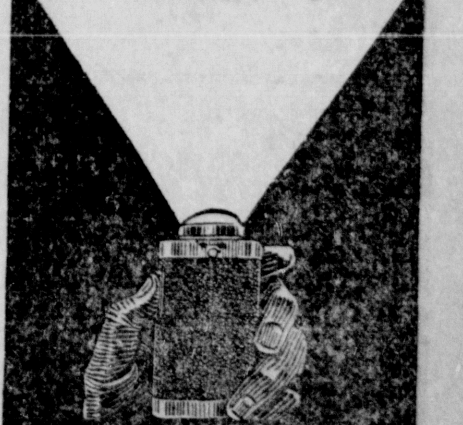

Common Wisdom. "The man who gives in when he is wrong," said a street orator, "is a wise man, but he who gives in when he is right is"—"Married!" said a meek voice in the crowd.—London Telegraph.

DULUTH WOMAN PUBLISHES
VOLUME OF MINN. VERSE

MRS. GUY E. FINCH

"A MINNESOTA CHRISTMAS"

Title of a Volume of Verse Published by May Stanley, a Charming Writer of Duluth

A little volume of Minnesota verse has been published by May Stanley (Mrs. Guy E. Finch), a Duluth writer and of the book the Duluth Herald says that the poems are chiefly of the Northern Minnesota woods and canoe trails, and are marked by their catchy rhythm. They deal with a new and promising field for the writer and poet.

In the dedication to the volume Mrs. Finch addresses herself to the pioneers of Northern Minnesota and says:

"These, my little verses, are for you, these are the dreams your dim woods gave me, and the song I heard your pine trees whisper all night long by the still lakes. If they are true, if they have any beauty, or have blent the myriad voices of the northern land Ever so faintly, you will understand—And I shall be content."

Many of the verses were first published in the Duluth News Tribune, the Pictorial Review and the Blue Bird magazines. Mrs. Finch is a valued contributor to the Sunday edition of the Duluth News Tribune.

Decorations of the book are by Arthur G. McCoy. The book was printed by the O. F. Collier Press of Duluth.

For those who have spent pioneer days in Crow Wing county or in the west or the wilds of the Arctic these verses entitled "The Trail-Maker" convey a particular appeal.

"I blazed the road, with my pack sack load
Of bacon and beans and ax—
For cook and crew and surveyor, too,
Were the men of the northern tracks.

I ran my lines through the stately pines
With their needle-scented floor,
And after me then came the railroad men—
But nobody went before.

I caught the red of the iron-ore bed
Up on the Vermilion way,
And the miners came to my virgin claim—
But it wasn't for me to stay.

So I led the race that had turned its face
To the north wood's timber store,
And I lay my head on a balsam bed
That had never been pressed before

And I traced to their heads new river beds,
And the vision came to me
How their waves would strive with the pine-log drive
For the cities yet to be.

But today the spans of your iron bands
Have covered the country here,
And I want to go to a land I know
And find me a new frontier.

And I want to camp where the air grows damp
With the scent I used to hail
When the birch-fire lay at the close of day—
I'm hungry to hit the trail."

Other titles of verses are "The Harbor," "Drifting," "Water Voices," "The Weavers," "The Mother Dream," "The Mother," "Wood Magic."

One will be well repaid reading the book of verses and charmed also to see Minnesota etched in lilting poetry, true to nature, and like nature, free, untrammelled, breathing the mystery of woods, dunes, trails, lake and river.

The Childrens Hour

The childrens show given at the Columbia theatre last Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Childrens Hour, proved so much of a success that Edwin Harris Bergh has decided to run the same sort of a show every Saturday afternoon.

The aim in these shows is to select films of an educational order and to avoid those which are too exciting or containing scenes not suited to children. The grown people present said the films were all that could be desired, and judging from the applause and expressions of delight the show was more popular with the children than usual.

The children seemed to appreciate the music too quite as much as their elders. There was a violin solo by Mr. Bergh and a trio by Mr. Bergh, Miss Wood and Mr. Witham. The audience all joined in a verse of "America," which had been thrown on the screen.

This show is of the kind recommended by our juvenile court judges and others interested in the welfare of our future citizens, and it behooves us in Brainerd to support Mr. Bergh in this latest undertaking in which he himself is thoroughly interested. If this Saturday afternoon show becomes a permanently established one, parents and teachers may find themselves compelled to attend if they would keep up with the youngsters in their knowledge of wild animals, foreign places and peoples and other interesting subjects.

Tomorrow the films will include fishes, beneath the water, scenes in Rome, coast towns of France, pearls of phosphorus and scenes from Constantinople. The comedy is all about how the children got up a circus. The show begins at 2:30 and 3:30.

The show a week from tomorrow will be under the auspices of the Childrens Hour, half of the profits to be devoted to the Associated Charities. At a later date there will be another for the benefit of an "Open Library Every Day."

MUSIC AND DRAMA

At the Grand

The story opens in the training camp of Kid Regan, who is scheduled to meet "Sailor" Brown, the holder of the middleweight championship and considers Kid Regan an easy mark, so neglects his training. He is backed by Whitney, a typical sport. Whitney is attracted to Mrs. Johnson, a young widow with a son five years old. He uses every means to bring the widow into his clutches, and the widow repulses every advance. Kid Regan adheres to his training religiously, and it is during one of his daily runs in the country that he sees Whitney, half intoxicated, with a girl in his car, run over a boy. The victim is Mrs. Johnson's son, George. Whitney attempts to run away after hitting the boy. Kid Regan seeks to interfere, but his trainer restrains him with the words, "You must take care of your hands, Kid." Kid takes the boy to the hospital, where he meets Mrs. Johnson. They strike up a friendship, which soon ripens into love. Whitney arranges to dope Kid by putting an opiate on the sponge to be used by Kid during the fight. Little George, who has been taken to the dressing room, finds the sponge and would play with it, but the careful trainer finds it and decides that this same sponge will be unfit for use. Accordingly he throws it away and puts in a new one. Kid Regan knocks out Sailor Brown. After the fight Kid finds Bud in his room trying to escape through a window. Bud confesses, and it is then that Whitney receives a sound thrashing from Kid Regan's hands. Not only does Kid Regan win the fight, but also his sweetheart.

Cancels Engagement

Manager E. A. Adams, of the Park theatre, in a statement made, said that the engagement of the "New York's Society Life and Underworld" has been canceled owing to the films being misrepresented and in bad condition. In future, said Mr. Adams, all films will be previously run privately in order to pass on them before exhibition.

DISPATCH WANT ADS FAY

VERA CRUZ HAS
LOTS OF MONEY

But It Is of Many Kinds and Needs Censor.

ACCEPT CONFEDERATE BILL.

For Price of Two Two Cent Postage Stamps One May Buy His Breakfast. American Money Three Times as Valuable as Mexican Scrip—Secret Service Watchful.

For the price of two two-cent postage stamps one may get a breakfast of coffee and sweet bread in Vera Cruz these days, for with an American dollar, worth five times as much as a Mexican peso (and they are of the same size, too), two two-cent American stamps are worth 20 centavos in Mexican money, which is a sufficient sum to buy the coffee and bread. That is the price in the lesser portals, the sidewalk restaurant and drinking place just off the Plaza de la Constitution and opposite the ancient parochial church, which in 1734 was dedicated to Nuestra Señora de la Asunción—Our Lady of the Assumption.

In these portals the men of the middle classes and the enlisted men of the American army and navy sit about the tables and drink their coffee or beer or what they please, while in the next block, under the portals of the Hotel Dilligencias, facing the plaza, the Mexican refugees of substance, the erstwhile federal generals, the científicos, the ousted officeholders under Victoriano Huerta and the officers of the United States army and navy do likewise, albeit not quite so cheaply, for it will take the price of three two-cent postage stamps to get the coffee and sweet bread in the Dilligencias portals.

Not that the coffee is a bit better in one place than in the other, and the bread all comes from the same bakeries. It is all a matter of caste and location, just as one may get the same beer downtown in New York for 5 cents a glass that he must pay 25 cents for in a marble tiled and gilded cafe of some ultra fashionable hotel uptown. In both portals the coffee is black as ink and strong as aqua fortis.

Gold Buys More.

But for all this the cost of living is much higher in Vera Cruz than it used to be—before the American occupation of the port. That is, it is far higher in Mexican money and much cheaper in gold money. When a Mexican peso was worth 50 cents gold one could buy the coffee and bread for 15 centavos instead of the 20 it costs now, but then it would have cost 7½ cents in American money instead of the 4 cents it costs now, with exchange at five to one.

Two years ago the Mexican who was making $50 a week in Mexican money was getting the same as the American who was earning $25 a week gold. Now, supposing each gets the same salary; the Mexican still has his 50 pesos a week, and the American with his $25 gold has 125 pesos, two and a half times as much as the Mexican. If the Mexican has to pay 5 pesos a day to support his family he has only 15 pesos a week left over, but the American after paying out 5 pesos a day has 90 pesos left over.

All sorts of Mexican money passes

Creamettes
Builds Sturdy Bodies

SOME mothers feed their children Creamettes three times a day. This new more tender macaroni product is the ideal substitute for meat.

The ordinary macaroni, as you know, takes from 30 to 35 minutes to cook. Creamettes cook to a delicious tenderness in from 5 to 8 minutes.

Creamettes is made from the creamy parts of Durum wheat and has a rich new flavor all its own.

Try it with cheese, with ham, with tomatoes, with bacon, or with nuts.

In Vera Cruz nowadays at its race value, no matter whether it is in the form of National bank bills, Huertista bills, which were printed by the millions in the City of Mexico, or the Constitutionalist bills of Carranza or Villa. The fractional currency bills are even more varied, but no one ever thinks of refusing one, no matter by whom issued. Mainly are issued by local banks in Vera Cruz. Others are in the form of tickets—very like milk tickets in the United States. All are equally good here. Street car fares are 6 centavos, or 11½ cents gold. A first class fare from Vera Cruz to the City of Mexico, including a berth in a Pullman, costs $19.00 Mexican, or $3.92 American money, for an all night or all day journey.

Confederate Bill Passed.

A twenty dollar Confederate bill was passed the other day at a curio store, and the man who passed it received 2 pesos' worth of merchandise and 98 pesos in money. The curio dealer was greatly surprised when he was told that the Confederate bill was worth only a few cents as a curiosity. Any piece of paper looking like a bank bill and printed in English, with figures on it, would pass for its alleged face value here among the Mexicans. It would not have to be counterfeit money. Stage money, advertisements, any old thing that looked like money would do.

Luckily for the Mexicans, there is a first class secret service here under the American rule, and suspicious characters are hustled out of the port as quickly as they are spotted. If it were not for this Vera Cruz would be a paradise just now for "shovers of the queer" and green goods artists.

Albion and Columbia.

"Albion, the Gem of the Ocean," was written and composed by Jesse Hammond, an English government dock official, about 1820 and was heard above all others in the theaters, music halls and on London streets.

It is apparent that "gem of the ocean" fits an island more aptly than our large tract of continent, and "borne by the red and the blue" (the red of the British army and blue of the navy) is more logical than the meaningless line "borne by the red, white and blue." The lines of the English song are almost word for word identical with our version, "The Red, White and Blue."—Exchange.

"Jerk it again. There's a lot of valuable property in that drawer, but we haven't been able to open it since the damp weather began. If you can pull it out I'll give you a handsome royalty on everything that's—"

But the burglar had jumped out through the window, taking a part of the sash with him.—Exchange.

The Missouri legislature has defeated the full-crew law, which requires that a third brakeman be placed on all freight trains.

A century ago there was no German Empire—only a number of states. Now united Germany is estimated to possess an income of nearly $10,000,000 and accumulated wealth of about $80,000,000. During the century German's population has grown from 24,000,000 to more than 67,000,000 or 180 percent.

An invited banquet to a thousand democrats, free of all charge, is being planned by the "old liners" in Minneapolis, and it is to be in honor of Governor Hammond. Two local democrats of great wealth are furnishing the funds with which to feast their party followers. If they will pick out men who would really enjoy the feed instead of a thousand hungry office seekers the occasion would be of more benefit.

The farmer pays no rent, and in this wooded country he has his own fuel, and raises his vegetables, meats, poultry products, fruits, dairy products, etc. He does not have to pay water rent, and seldom pays street car fare. The food supplies he produces are fresh and in fine condition. Also, if he is a thrifty man, he always has something for sale. Who is more independent than the farmer, is a query in the Superior Telegram.

The press of the twin cities says that Senator George H. Gardner has been in St. Paul investigating the matter of patronage that will be doled out by the senate organization as soon as it convenes in January. Senator Gardner is one of the new members and is interested in seeing fair play in the matter of patronage, as well as other things connected with the coming session, and he thinks that the matter of economy should be considered in the patronage line but that the necessary employment of clerks and others in order to care for the needs of the house and senate should be distributed throughout the different congressional districts in order that each section be recognized, which is a fair proposition.

L. M. Davis, the newly elected house member from Todd county, has some system to the policy he is to adopt at the coming session. He will call a mass meeting of the people of his county and have them determine how he shall vote, if they favor county option his vote will be "yes" on that proposition and "no" if the mass meeting says so. On other propositions he will be influenced by the voice of his people in mass meetings assembled. It may embarrass his constituents to be massed so often but if the plan is carried out they can't raise an objection as to how their representative votes unless they instruct him. And, when you come to think of it, it is really the right thing for a man to represent his constituents when he votes on measures in the legislature.

MORE INSANITY IN CITY

There has been a popular impression that the lonely isolation of country life is an important cause of insanity. The statistics, however, indicate that more insanity is caused by the stress and strain, the keener competition, the congested housing conditions, and the vice and dissipation of city life. In proportion to population the number of inmates of hospitals for the insane received from urban communities is twice as great as the number received from rural districts. Of the 60,769 persons admitted to insane hospitals in 1910, 36,654 came from cities, villages or other incorporated places of more than 2,500 inhabitants, while 20,442 came from the smaller towns or country districts leaving 3,673 for whom the place of residence was not reported. Of more significance, however, are the statistics showing the number of admissions in proportion to the total population of each class of communities. From rural communities 41 insane persons were admitted per 100,000 population; from the urban communities the ratio was 86 per 100,000. These figures cover the entire United States, but there is a similar difference in all sections of the country. Everywhere the ratio of admissions is higher, and usually much higher, from urban than from rural communities, although the contrast is rather less striking in New England than in other geographic divisions. It seems probable, therefore, that the increase in the proportion of total population living in cities has resulted in an increase of insanity.

THE LOST ANTELOPE.

Agnes Herbert Tells of Restoring a Tiny Creature to Its Mother.

A native hunter in Somaliland brought in a baby antelope to the camp of two English women. He told them that the mother was alive and unharmed; that he had ridden them down until the little oryx exhausted, had to drop, and the mother fled on. In "Two Dianas in Somaliland," Agnes Herbert tells of restoring the tiny creature to its mother. The hunter had declared that it was taken back to the place whence it came the doe would assuredly find it.

"We decided to try this, but to secrete ourselves, and cover the baby back with our protecting rifles. Otherwise it was quite likely that a lion or leopard would make off with it ere its mother could retrieve it. I took the timorous creature across my saddle—it seemed all struggling legs and arms—and made for the place, some two miles off, where he first started the oryx.

"We set the baby down alone, so fragile and small it looked, and then hid ourselves in a great thorn-brake. The little oryx did not wander far. Sometimes it bleated a little tremble; once or twice it lay down, tucking its long legs beneath it, to rise and wander, all lonely, among the low thorn bushes. Two hours or more we waited, and then a gentle whinny, and almost before we realized it a perfect oryx doe cantered toward the fawn. She nosed it all over, and her joy expressed itself in every imaginable way. It was a beautiful and

Japanese Methods Quite Different From Those of Any Other Nation.

A Japanese house is built quite differently from an English one. The roof, which with us is the last important part of the outward structure to be completed, is with the Japanese the first thing to be finished. All the tools used by the carpenters and joiners have a reversed action. The Japanese carpenter does not push a plane away from him, but pulls it toward him.

The gimlets are threaded in the opposite way from ours; the saws are made so as to cut on the upward pull and not on the downward thrust; screws have their threads reversed, and keyholes are always made up side down and the keys turned backward. In the house, if the clock is an old one, it will have stationary hands, with the face revolving backward and the hours marked 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, and so on, reckoning onward from noon.

George H. Quackenbos, a police sergeant assigned to the Bureau of Information at police headquarters, New York City, whose criticism of Mme. Bernhardt's production of "La Samaritaine" has attracted the attention of dramatic critics at home and abroad, is known as the "department linguist." He was once Professor Quackenbos, and creditably filled the chair of rhetoric at Seton Hall, taught Latin, Greek and higher mathematics at a Jesuit college and was instructor in the Romance languages at other institutions.

O, these immature instincts and unsure purposes and voiceless longings! How many of them go into any piece of work that is worth the doing!

Mrs. Travis F. Eastham Falls Into Hole Near Deerwood Depot—Other Deerwood News

Deerwood, Minn., Dec. 11—A Deerwood man, Godfrey A. Crone, is winner of the first prize in the first land drawing contest the United States government ever held in Duluth. Allotments in the Mississippi reservoir land which was restored to entry last summer were drawn by lottery under the supervision of the register and the receiver of the land office. The farm is one of 72.60 acres. In case Mr. Crone does not qualify, then Clarence W. Shelly, of Minneapolis, who drew second place will receive all the rights to the farm drawn. Mr. Crone is a member of the grocery firm of Carlson & Crone, well known merchants of Deerwood.

Mrs. Travis F. Eastham, of Brainerd, was hurt Tuesday evening when she fell into a hole at the east end of the Northern Pacific railway depot. An excavation had been made and it is claimed that it was not entirely fenced in. Mrs. Eastham in the dark walked into the hole and it is said struck some rocks in her descent which injured her. She was taken to the Deerwood hotel.

Twenty applications for water have been received by the village clerk, Julius O. Hage. Fifteen have already been connected up with Deerwoods waterworks. Under the ordinance lately adopted it costs $12 to tap the mains. The water rates are $6 a quarter and the meter rental 25 cents a month. Ten per cent discount is allowed on bills paid the fifteenth of the month in which rent is due.

Many Deerwood people attended the good roads conference at Crosby at which time preparations were completed for the reception of D. Ward King, good roads speaker.

H. J. Kruse, of Crosby, was in Deerwood Wednesday.

Thomas Keating visited Brainerd Thursday.

Judge James T. Hale, newly appointed member of the state tax commission, will soon remove to St. Paul. The commission is almost constantly in session and it will be much more convenient for the judge to have his family with him in St. Paul. Poultry and stock at his Deerwood home are to be sold. This includes a pure bred dairy cow from the Jean Du Luth farm.

Julius O. Hage will spend Christmas with his parents in Minneapolis.

Gust Franson has returned from a business trip to Minneapolis. Mr. Franson is interested in many realty deals.

Joe Raymond butchered three of the finest pigs ever raised in Minnesota. He said he felt like a pork trust when he viewed the three carcasses and the fifteen other porkers scampering about the pens.

The Missouri legislature has defeated the full-crew law, which requires that third brakemen be placed on all freight trains.

A century ago there was no German Empire—only a number of states. Now united Germany is estimated to possess an income of nearly $10,000,000 and accumulated wealth of about $80,000,000. During the century Germany's population has grown from 24,000,000 to more than 61,000,000 or 180 percent.

An invited banquet to a thousand democrats, free of all charge is being planned by the "old timers" in Minneapolis, and it is to be in honor of Governor Hammond. Two local democrats of great wealth are furnishing the funds with which to feast their party followers. If they will pick out men who would really enjoy the feed instead of a thousand hungry office seekers the occasion would be of more benefit.

The farmer pays no rent, and in this wooded country he has his own fuel, and raises his vegetables, meats, poultry products, fruits, dairy products, etc. He does not have to pay water rent, and seldom pays street car fare. The food supplies he produces are fresh and in fine condition. Also, if he is a thrifty man, he always has something for sale. Who is more independent than the farmer, is a query in the Superior Telegram.

The press of the twin cities says that Senator George H. Gardner has been in St. Paul investigating the matter of patronage that will be doled out by the senate organization as soon as it convenes in January. Senator Gardner is one of the new members and is interested in seeing fair play in the matter of patronage, as well as other things connected with the coming session, and he thinks that the matter of economy should be considered in the patronage line but that the necessary employment of clerks and others in order to care for the needs of the house and senate should be distributed throughout the different congressional districts in order that each section be recognized, which is a fair proposition.

L. M. Davis, the newly elected house member from Todd county, has some system to the policy he is to adopt at the coming session. He will call a mass meeting of the people of his county and have them determine how he shall vote, if they favor county option his vote will be "yes" on that proposition and "no" if the mass meeting says so. On other propositions he will be influenced by the voice of his people in mass meetings assembled. It may embarrass his constituents to be massed so often but if the plan is carried out they can't raise an objection as to how their representative votes unless they instruct him. And, when you come to think of it, it is really the right thing for a man to represent his constituents when he votes on measures in the legislature.

MORE INSANITY IN CITY

There has been a popular impression that the lonely isolation of country life is an important cause of insanity. The statistics, however, indicate that more insanity is caused by the stress and strain, the keener competition, the congested housing conditions, and the vice and dissipation of city life. In proportion to population the number of inmates of hospitals for the insane received from urban communities is twice as great as the number received from rural districts. Of the 60,769 persons admitted to insane hospitals in 1910, 36,654 came from cities, villages or other incorporated places of more than 2,500 inhabitants, while 20,442 came from the smaller towns or country districts leaving 3,673 for whom the place of residence was not reported. Of more significance, however, are the statistics showing the number of admissions in proportion to the total population of each class of communities. From rural communities 41 insane persons were admitted per 100,000 population; from the urban communities the ratio was 86 per 100,000. These figures cover the entire United States, but there is a similar difference in all sections of the country. Everywhere the ratio of admissions is higher, and usually much higher, from urban than from rural communities, although the contrast is rather less striking in New England than in other geographic divisions. It seems probable, therefore, that the increase in the proportion of total population living in cities has resulted in an increase of insanity.

THE LOST ANTELOPE.

Agnes Herbert Tells of Restoring a Tiny Creature to Its Mother.

A native hunter in Somaliland brought in a baby antelope to the camp of two English women. He told them that the mother was alive and unharmed; that he had ridden them down until the little oryx exhausted, had to drop, and the mother fled on. In "Two Dianas in Somaliland," Agnes Herbert tells of restoring the tiny creature to its mother. The hunter had declared that it was taken back to the place whence it came the doe would assuredly find it.

"We decided to try this, but to secrete ourselves, and cover the baby back with our protecting rifles. Otherwise it was quite likely that a lion or leopard would make off with it ere its mother could retrieve it. I took the timorous creature across my saddle—it seemed all struggling legs and arms—and made for the place, some two miles off, where he first started the oryx.

"We set the baby down alone, so fragile and small it looked, and then hid ourselves in a great thorn-brake. The little oryx did not wander far. Sometimes it bleated a little tinkle; once or twice it lay down, tucking its long legs beneath it, to rise and wander, all lonely, among the low thorn bushes. Two hours or more we waited, and then a gentle whinny, and almost before we realized it a perfect oryx doe cantered toward the fawn. She nosed it all over, and her joy expressed itself in every imaginable way. It was a beautiful and

Japanese Methods Quite Different From Those of Any Other Nation.

A Japanese house is built quite differently from an English one. The roof, which with us is the last important part of the outward structure to be completed, is with the Japanese the first thing to be finished. All the tools used by the carpenters and joiners have a reversed action. The Japanese carpenter does not push a plane away from him, but pulls it toward him.

The gimlets are threaded in the opposite way from ours; the saws are made so as to cut on the upward pull and not on the downward thrust; screws have their threads reversed, and keyholes are always made upside down and the keys turned backward. In the house, if the clock is an old one, it will have stationary hands, with the face revolving backward and the hours marked 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, and so on, reckoning onward from noon.

George H. Quackenbos, a police sergeant assigned to the Bureau of Information at police headquarters, New York City, whose criticism of Mme. Bernhardt's production of "La Samaritaine" has attracted the attention of dramatic critics at home and abroad, is known as the "department linguist." He was once Professor Quackenbos, and creditably filled the chair of rhetoric at Seton Hall, taught Latin, Greek and higher mathematics at a Jesuit college and was instructor in the Romance languages at other institutions.

O, these immature instincts and unsure purposes and voiceless longings! How many of them go into any piece of work that is worth the doing!

Deerwood, Minn., Dec. 11.—A Deerwood man, Godfrey A. Crone, is winner of the first prize in the first land drawing contest the United States government ever held in Duluth, Alotments in the Mississippi reservoir land which was restored to entry last summer were drawn by lottery under the supervision of the register and the receiver of the land office. The farm is one of 72.60 acres. In case Mr. Crone does not qualify, then Clarence W. Shelly, of Minneapolis, who drew second place will receive all the rights to the farm drawn. Mr. Crone is a member of the grocery firm of Carlson & Crone, well known merchants of Deerwood.

Mrs. Travis F. Eastham, of Brainerd, was hurt Tuesday evening when she fell into a hole at the east end of the Northern Pacific railway depot. An excavation had been made and it is claimed that it was not entirely fenced in. Mrs. Eastham in the dark walked into the hole and it is said struck some rocks in her descent which injured her. She was taken to the Deerwood hotel.

Twenty applications for water have been received by the village clerk, Julius O. Hage. Fifteen have already been connected up with Deerwoods waterworks. Under the ordinance lately adopted it costs $12 to tap the mains. The water rates are $6 a quarter and the meter rental 25 cents a month. Ten per cent discount is allowed on bills paid the fifteenth of the month in which rent is due.

Many Deerwood people attended the good roads conference at Crosby at which time preparations were completed for the reception of D. Ward King, good roads speaker.

The commission is almost constantly in session and it will be much more convenient for the judge to have his family with him in St. Paul. Poultry and stock at his Deerwood home are to be sold. This includes a pure bred dairy cow from the Jean Du Luth farm.

Julius O. Hage will spend Christmas with his parents in Minneapolis. Gust Franson has returned from a business trip to Minneapolis. Mr. Franson is interested in many realty deals.

SPEAKS ON CITY WATER SUPPLY

Prof. F. H. Bass, of St. Paul, Consulting Engineer State Board of Health, Chief Speaker at

BOARD EXHIBIT LAST NIGHT

Filtration Plant for Brainerd would Cost Approximately From $20,000 to $30,000

The principal speaker at the State Board of Health lectures at Gardner hall Thursday evening was Prof. F. H. Bass, of St. Paul, consulting engineer of the State Board of Health and also connected with the sanitary engineering division of the University of Minnesota.

Prof. Bass spoke of Brainerd and the sources of its water supply which he designated as a filtration plant getting water from the Mississippi, a system deriving water from lakes and one gaining water from wells. In filtration plants there were two kinds, a rapid filter and a slow filter. The slow filter clarified 3,000,000 gallons a day. A rapid filter cleared about 100,000,000 gallons daily.

He described in detail the Minneapolis filtration plant where the water ran into a concrete basin 18 or 20 feet deep, was clarified, then dashed on a filter bed where practically all the sediment and the larger percentage of bacteria, possibly 90 per cent, was taken out and water almost absolutely pure plunged into Minneapolis water mains. In recent years violet rays were in use at some filtration plants for clearing water, supplanting chemicals.

"Brainerd's supply," said Prof. Bass, "is not very satisfactory when it is not uniformly looked after." Since the plant was put in four years ago these examinations had been made:

1912, water at Brainerd examined three times, being in March, June and July.

1913, water examined two times.

1914, water examined two times.

In 1912 and 1913 sewage bacteria were found in taps. In 1914 the two examinations made found the water in very satisfactory condition.

In a city like Brainerd a filtration plant of three units measuring 15 by 20 feet would be found very satisfactory and such a plant can be erected at a cost of from $20,000 to $30,000. It would not be necessary to purify such shop water as was used to wash boilers and engines or for other mechanical purposes and the city would gain in saving expense by only clarifying water used for drinking purposes.

It usually took a long time to arouse people of any town in regard to the necessity of having a pure water supply. In Minneapolis ten years of talk and four sieges of typhoid fever eventually put the people in such frame of mind that they took action and made a radical change. They talked of getting water from Lake Superior and from Mille Lacs lake and then selected a filtration plant.

In many communities it took time and the actual sacrifice of lives before towns were awakened to the necessity of having pure water and as to the bearing it had on the health of a community.

"It's with the water the same as with the conditions regarding tuberculosis," said Prof. Bass emphatically. "We can go preaching through the land on the dangers of tuberculosis, the loss to the state of the many lives sacrificed through ignorance, we can aim to arouse the people and still they go on serenely until some catastrophe awakens them to a realization of their needs." Smallpox, said the speaker, scared people more than tuberculosis.

In Mankato fifty people sued the city shortly after an epidemic of typhoid fever. Two litigants were persistent enough to carry their cases to the state supreme court which decided they had a cause of action.

The water supply arrangements in Brainerd were of a temporary nature. Prof. Bass, however, emphatically said he did not recommend any certain source of supply or any system. That was left to the people to work out. They were supreme.

Breckenridge, said the speaker, but in a filtration plant and the water taken from the river near by was originally not as good as the Mississippi. A filtration plant reduced to a minimum their annual siege of typhoid.

A series of lantern slides was projected on the screen and explanations made and a lecture given by A. R. Blakey, of St. Paul, in charge of the State Board of Health exhibit.

The Brainerd musical club had a large delegation of members present. Many questions were asked of both Professor Bass and Mr. Blakey.

This afternoon lectures will be given for the benefit of the school children. In the evening Dr. H. W. Hill, of St. Paul, secretary of the Minnesota Public Health association, will speak on "Germs and Diseases." Lantern slides showing germs will be shown. Among these are the deadly tuberculosis, typhoid and diphtheria germs.

Illustrations are shown as to how the germs propagate, traveling from one person to another. Cases have been known of typhoid patients having that disease and being a regular culture station for breeding and disseminating the germs, deadly to others.

Flies and milk carry typhoid as well as water. One cartoon displayed on the walls of the exhibit shows this point in detail, giving the journey of a fly from the dung pile to the innocent baby's milk.

These meetings held by the State Board of Health are of intense interest and Brainerd people should attend, see the exhibit and hear the lectures this afternoon and evening.

The huge order placed by this road is one of a chain of railroad indications of expansion and certain business.

DEATH OF JOS. B. ELDER

Well Known Brainerd Man Passed Away Thursday Afternoon, Had Been Sick Several Years

Joseph B. Elder, a well known Brainerd resident, aged 52, died on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at his home, 320 North Fourth street, from a complication of diseases. He was a widower, his wife having passed to her reward five years ago and the family circle was further saddened by the loss of a daughter. Mr. Elder leaves a son, Robert Elder, and two brothers, D. R. Elder of St. Paul and James M. Elder of Brainerd. Arriving from St. Paul today to attend the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Elder.

Mr. Elder was born in Owensboro, Kentucky, Nov. 17, 1862. He came to Brainerd in 1894. For many years Mr. Elder was in charge of the pumping station of the city, and his methodical way of taking charge of matters there for 15 years won him the regard of the city. Some years ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis which weakened him and eventually was a contributing factor to his demise. He was a member of the Methodist church.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the residence. Rev. W. J. Lowrie, of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate.

To the bereaved relatives the sympathy of the community is extended.

AFFIRMS ORDER OF LOWER COURT

State Supreme Court Passes on Appeal of Peter L. Newman and Wm. Sullivan of Crosby

IN SJOGREN KIDNAPING CASE

Verdict Sustained by Evidence, Evidence Properly Received, It was a Joint Trial

On December 11 the state supreme court decided the appeal of Peter L. Newman and Wm. Sullivan, of Crosby, in the so-called Sjogren kidnaping case, affirming the order of the lower court, which found them guilty.

The syllabus states that: Defendants (George C. Payne, Peter L. Newman, Wm. Sullivan) were convicted of the crime of kidnaping, and (last two) appealed. It is held:

1. The verdict is sustained by the evidence.

2. The evidence of one of the defendants given on a former trial was properly received in evidence as against such defendant. It was given voluntarily, and its admission in evidence on the second trial was not a violation of said defendant's privilege against self incrimination.

3. The evidence of one of the defendants given on the former trial was not admissible as against the other defendants on trial. It being a joint trial, the evidence was properly in the case, and the jury should have been instructed that it was not evidence as against the other defendants. There being no request or suggestion to the trial court to give such instruction, it was not error to fail to do so.

Order affirmed. In its opinion written by Justice Dunn the state supreme court reviews the case in this language:

Defendants Newman and Sullivan, with two others, were tried jointly on an indictment charging them with the crime of kidnaping. The jury acquitted the other defendants, but found Newman and Sullivan guilty. They moved for a new trial, and appealed from an order denying the same.

It is claimed, though not very strenuously, that the evidence is not sufficient to justify a verdict of guilty. G. S. 1913, Sec. 8628 so far as material here, reads as follows: "Every person who shall wilfully seize, confine or inveigle another, with intent to cause him without authority of law, to be secretly confined or imprisoned within the state, or sent out of it, to be sold as a slave, or in any way held to service, or kept or detained against his will, shall be guilty of kidnaping, and punished" etc.

The indictment charged that the defendant on April 17th, 1913, at the village of Crosby, in Crow Wing county, did wilfully, unlawfully and feloniously seize, confine and inveigle one Theodore Sjogren, with intent to cause him, without authority of law, to be secretly confined within the state, and set out the acts constituting the seizure, confinement and inveigling of Sjogren.

The evidence justified the jury in believing beyond a reasonable doubt that the following facts were true:

Sjogren was a miner and had come from his home in Michigan to work in one of the mines near Crosby. The miners started a strike and Sjogren was a member of a committee appointed to confer with the superintendent and the "captain" of the shaft. Several conferences had been held prior to the evening of April 17th, 1913. On that evening Sjogren visited a pool hall in Crosby and attended a moving picture show. After coming out from this show with two companions, and as he was passing an automobile standing near the sidewalk, revolvers were pointed at his face, and he was ordered to step into the automobile. He complied, and the automobile drove off. Defendants Newman and Sullivan were two of the men, the others being the two defendants who were acquitted and one Payne, who was indicted but not tried. All of the men had revolvers, and dark handkerchiefs over their faces. They gagged Sjogren and went through his pockets, though they took nothing from him. The machine was driven to Brainerd, with more or less of threats and shooting on the way. In Brainerd the five men conducted Sjogren to a room in a hotel, where they had refreshments. Sjogren was told that if he would not go back to the mines, but go home to Michigan, the men would let him go, but would shoot him full of holes if he ever came back or wrote to his friends in Crosby. Sjogren promised, and his captors left him in charge of Payne, one of the number. The others going back to Crosby. Payne, with the help of a revolver, kept Sjogren in charge saw that he bought a ticket for Duluth, and took the train with him. Payne got off at Deerwood. Sjogren continuing to Duluth.

It is manifest that this story, if believed, was sufficient to convict defendants of wilfully seizing, confining or inveigling Sjogren, with the intent to cause him without authority of law, to be secretly confined or imprisoned within the state. There is little room to question the substantial features of Sjogren's tale, as told above, and we are obliged to hold that conviction was justified by the evidence. We are not concerned with the motives of the men who thus attempted to get out of the way one of the committee of strikers. It is not pretended that they acted with any legal authority.

The only question in the case that merits special mention is one of evidence. This was the second trial. On the first defendant Newman testified on his own behalf. On this trial, the state offered his testimony given on the first trial. The attorney for all of the four defendants on trial entered a general objection that the testimony was incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. The objection was overruled, and defendants excepted.

It is claimed that the admission of this evidence was error as to defendant Newman on the ground that it was a violation of his constitutional privilege to refuse to incriminate himself. We cannot adopt this view. The evidence was given voluntarily on the former trial. We see no distinction between his declarations there under oath, and voluntary statements made out of court. He is not deprived of his constitutional privilege where the declarations offered against him were made voluntarily. It is otherwise where the statements offered were made under legal compulsion. The distinction is clearly perceived by comparing State v. Strait, 94 Minn. 384, and State v. Drew, 110 Minn. 243, the former a case of declarations made by a bankrupt in voluntary bankruptcy proceedings, which were held admissible, the latter a case where the declarations were made in involuntary proceedings and held inadmissible. The authorities elsewhere support the view that the evidence of Newman on the former trial was admissible as against him on this trial. 40 Cyc. 2541, and cases cited. Commonwealth v. Reynolds, 122 Mass. 454; People v. Kelly, 47 Cal. 125; People v. Arnold, 43 Mich. 303; State v. Gilman, 51 Me. 206; State v. Wytham, 72 Mo. 531; Dickerson v. State, 48 Wis. 288.

It is equally plain that Newman's testimony on the former trial was not admissible as against defendant Sullivan. This is conceded. But it was properly received as against Newman. It was a joint trial, defendants not availing themselves of their right to be tried separately. The evidence was therefore rightly in the case, but could not be used as against the defendants other than Newman. The court, on such a suggestion being made, would undoubtedly have so instructed the jury. But the attention of the court was in no way called to this situation by any request or suggestion from counsel. There was no error under the circumstances. It should be added that it is difficult in any event to see how the admission of this evidence prejudiced defendant Sullivan. He went on the stand himself and gave substantially the same story of the automobile ride and supper in Brainerd that Newman gave in his testimony on the former trial. Order affirmed.

MANY SLOGANS RECEIVED

Chamber of Commerce Contest Desires Slogan to Epitomize the City

A slogan or motto, an epigram or phrase expressive of a city has become in recent years a popularity evidenced by the fact that a great number of the cities in this county have adopted some such motto to characterize a particular phase of their existence. The first city to adopt such a method of advertising was Chicago and in an attempt to crystallize the atmosphere of this city of the great lakes the expression "I will" was adopted which has become almost synonymous with the word Chicago.

It is difficult to resist the temptation to group slogans into five separate and distinct classes.

There is the casual slogan; a general introduction to the entering stranger.

There is the persuasive slogan, a cordial invitation not only to enter but to share in the eminent prosperity of the city.

There is the assertive slogan: full of pride and sublimely conscious of its truth, directed to the outsider who knows not the tremendous advantages in this city.

There is the descriptive slogan: calculated to impress the stranger with the desirability, beauty and prosperity of the city.

There is the exhortative slogan: different from all others in that it is directed not to the outsider but to the people themselves.

"Chicago's 'I Will'": the battle cry of St. Louis "Forward St. Louis," the catch word of Syracuse, "Succeed With Syracuse," and the inspiration "Help Austin Grow," are excellent examples of slogans.

Canton, Ohio, has adopted the phrase "Welcome." Muskogee, Oklahoma has adopted "Welcome to Muskogee," but the persuasive slogan seemed to present a more encouraging spirit of endeavor, such as "New Business for New Kensington," "Make Jonesboro First," "Mount Vernon Wants Opportunity," "Pin Your Faith on Stuebenville, Spend Your Money Here," "Topeka Kan—Topeka Will," "Anchor in Fon du Lac—It is Safe," "Bigger, Better, Busier Raleigh," "The City With a Payroll of a Million a Week," "Itasca, the Biggest Little City," "In Kalamazoo—We Do."

Not to become too academic, a slogan should characterize a city very definitely. Parents are careful in naming their children, not to be ridiculous, and this city should be equally cautious in adopting a slogan, trade-mark or motto.

Truly it can be said that a slogan is the voice of the city and those entering the contest for the prize which the Chamber of Commerce has offered for the best slogan, should bear this point in mind. Already a great many slogans have been received, a few of which are the result of catch-thought and some have fallen foul of the practical joker.

POT HUNTERS MAKE MONEY

Find Ready Sale for Their Game, Their Presence is a Menace to Deer and Moose

When a hunter is unable to obtain a deer, it is a common practice to buy one from a pot hunter, declared F. B. Meyers of the state game and fish commission, to a reporter, which may explain why nearly every hunter returning from the northern woods has brought back a deer this year.

Without a market the poachers soon would be driven out of business, said Mr. Meyers, who said the purchasers of venison illegally obtained should be made to suffer heavily in the hope of discouraging such offenses.

Mr. Meyers, said the game wardens had more than 60 cases pending at Hibbing for violations of the big game laws and that many of the offenders are among the most prominent citizens of the town.

"Minnesota will never receive the best work from its game wardens until the game protection service is taken out of politics and placed on a civil service basis," declared E. A. Cleasby federal inspector of migratory birds, at the state capitol today. "Game wardenship should be a profession and not a job. Under the Minnesota system a game warden likely as not may be displaced just about the time he has mastered the duties of his office and come to be of real value of his office and come to be of real value to the state."

"Six states already have civil service for state employees and in the departments with which I am familiar, as in the game protection and forest service, I know that better results are obtainable than under the old system."

SPEAKS ON CITY WATER SUPPLY

Prof. F. H. Bass, of St. Paul, Consulting Engineer State Board of Health, Chief Speaker at

BOARD EXHIBIT LAST NIGHT

Filtration Plant for Brainerd would Cost Approximately From $20,000 to $30,000

The principal speaker at the State Board of Health lectures at Gardner hall Thursday evening was Prof. F. H. Bass, of St. Paul, consulting engineer of the State Board of Health and also connected with the sanitary engineering division of the University of Minnesota.

Prof. Bass spoke of Brainerd and the sources of its water supply which he designated as a filtration plant getting water from the Mississippi, a system deriving water from lakes and one gaining water from wells. In filtration plants there were two kinds, a rapid filter and a slow filter. The slow filter clarified 3,000,000 gallons a day. A rapid filter cleared about 100,000,000 gallons daily.

He described in detail the Minneapolis filtration plant where the water ran into a concrete basin 18 or 20 feet deep, was clarified, then dashed on a filter bed where practically all the sediment and the larger percentage of bacteria, possibly 90 per cent, was taken out and water almost absolutely pure plunged into Minneapolis water mains. In recent years violet rays were in use at some filtration plants for clearing water, supplanting chemicals.

"Brainerd's supply," said Prof. Bass, "is not very satisfactory when it is not uniformly looked after." Since the plant was put in four years ago these examinations had been made:

1912, water at Brainerd examined three times, being in March, June and July.

1913, water examined two times.

1914, water examined two times.

In 1912 and 1913 sewage bacteria were found in taps. In 1914 the two examinations made found the water in very satisfactory condition.

In a city like Brainerd a filtration plant of three units measuring 15 by 20 feet would be found very satisfactory and such a plant can be erected at a cost of from $20,000 to $30,000. It would not be necessary to purify such shop water as was used to wash boilers and engines or for other mechanical purposes and the city would gain in saving expense by only clarifying water used for drinking purposes.

It usually took a long time to arouse people of any town in regard to the necessity of having a pure water supply. In Minneapolis ten years of talk and four sieges of typhoid fever eventually put the people in such frame of mind that they took action and made a radical change. They talked of getting water from Lake Superior and from Mille Lacs lake and then selected a filtration plant.

In many communities it took time and the actual sacrifice of lives before towns were awakened to the necessity of having pure water and as to the heading it had on the health of a community.

"It's with the water the same as with the conditions regarding tuberculosis," said Prof. Bass emphatically. "We can go preaching through the land on the dangers of tuberculosis, the loss to the state of the many lives sacrificed through ignorance, we can aim to arouse the people and still they go on serenely until some catastrophe awakens them to a realization of their needs." Smallpox, said the speaker, scared people more than tuberculosis.

In Mankato fifty people sued the city shortly after an epidemic of typhoid fever. Two litigants were persistent enough to carry their cases to the state supreme court which decided they had a cause of action.

The water supply arrangements in Brainerd were of a temporary nature, Prof. Bass, however, emphatically said he did not recommend any certain source of supply or any system. That was left to the people to work out. They were supreme.

Breckenridge, said the speaker, but in a filtration plant and the water taken from the river near by was originally not as good as the Mississippi. A filtration plant reduced to a minimum their annual siege of typhoid.

A series of lantern slides was projected on the screen and explanations made and a lecture given by A. R. Blakey, of St. Paul, in charge of the State Board of Health exhibit.

The Brainerd musical club had a large delegation of members present. Many questions were asked of both Professor Bass and Mr. Blakey.

This afternoon lectures will be given for the benefit of the school children. In the evening Dr. H. W. Hill, of St. Paul, secretary of the Minnesota Public Health association, will speak on "Germs and Diseases." Lantern slides showing germs will be shown. Among these are the deadly tuberculosis, typhoid and diphtheria germs.

Illustrations are shown as to how the germs propagate, traveling from one person to another. Cases have been known of typhoid patients having that disease and being a regular culture station for breeding and disseminating the germs, deadly to others.

Films and milk carry typhoid as well as water. One cartoon displayed on the walls of the exhibit shows this point in detail, giving the journey of a fly from the dung pile to the innocent baby's milk.

These meetings held by the State Board of Health are of intense interest and Brainerd people should attend, see the exhibit and hear the lectures this afternoon and evening.

DEATH OF JOS. B. ELDER

Well Known Brainerd Man Passed Away Thursday Afternoon, Had Been Sick Several Years

Joseph B. Elder, a well known Brainerd resident, aged 52, died on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at his home, 320 North Fourth street, from a complication of diseases. He was a widower, his wife having passed to her reward five years ago and the family circle was further saddened by the loss of a daughter. Mr. Elder leaves a son, Robert Elder, and two brothers, D. R. Elder of St. Paul and James M. Elder of Brainerd. Arriving from St. Paul today to attend the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Elder.

Mr. Elder was born in Owensboro, Kentucky, Nov. 17, 1862. He came to Brainerd in 1894. For many years Mr. Elder was in charge of the pumping station of the city, and his methodical way of taking charge of matters there for 15 years won him the regard of the city. Some years ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis which weakened him and eventually was a contributing factor to his demise. He was a member of the Methodist church.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the residence. Rev. W. J. Lowrie, of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate.

To the bereaved relatives the sympathy of the community is extended.

AFFIRMS ORDER OF LOWER COURT

State Supreme Court Passes on Appeal of Peter L. Newman and Wm. Sullivan of Crosby

IN SJOGREN KIDNAPING CASE

Verdict Sustained by Evidence, Evidence Properly Received, It Was a Joint Trial

On December 11 the state supreme court decided the appeal of Peter L. Newman and Wm. Sullivan, of Crosby, in the so-called Sjogren kidnaping case, affirming the order of the lower court, which found them guilty.

The syllabus states that:

Defendants (George C. Payne, Peter L. Newman, Wm. Sullivan) were convicted of the crime of kidnaping, and (last two) appealed. It is held:

1. The verdict is sustained by the evidence.

2. The evidence of one of the defendants given on a former trial was properly received in evidence as against such defendant. It was given voluntarily, and its admission in evidence on the second trial was not a violation of said defendant's privilege against self incrimination.

3. The evidence of one of the defendants given on the former trial was not admissible as against the other defendants on trial. It being a joint trial, the evidence was properly in the case, and the jury should have been instructed that it was not evidence as against the other defendants. There being no request or suggestion to the trial court to give such instruction, it was not error to fail to do so.

Order affirmed. In its opinion written by Justice Bunn the state supreme court reviews the case in this language:

Defendants Newman and Sullivan, with two others, were tried jointly on an indictment charging them with the crime of kidnaping. The jury, acquitted the other defendants, but found Newman and Sullivan guilty. They moved for a new trial, and appealed from an order denying the same.

It is claimed, though not very strenuously, that the evidence is not sufficient to justify a verdict of guilty.

G. S. 1913, Sec. 8628 so far as material here, reads as follows: "Every person who shall wilfully seize, confine or inveigle another, with intent to cause him without authority of law, to be secretly confined or imprisoned within the state, or sent out of it, to be sold as a slave, or in any way held to service, or kept or detained against his will, shall be guilty of kidnaping, and punished" etc.

The indictment charged that the defendant on April 17th, 1913, at the village of Crosby, in Crow Wing county, did wilfully, unlawfully and feloniously seize, confine and inveigle one Theodore Sjogren, with intent to cause him, without authority of law, to be secretly confined within the state, and set out the acts constituting the seizure, confinement and inveigling of Sjogren.

The evidence justified the jury in believing beyond a reasonable doubt that the following facts were true:

Sjogren was a miner and had come from his home in Michigan to work in one of the mines near Crosby. The miners started a strike and Sjogren was a member of a committee appointed to confer with the superintendent and the "captain" of the shaft. Several conferences had been held prior to the evening of April 17th, 1913. On that evening Sjogren visited a pool hall in Crosby and attended a moving picture show. After coming out from this show with two companions, and as he was passing an automobile standing near the sidewalk, revolvers were pointed at his face, and he was ordered to step into the automobile. He complied, and the automobile drove off. Defendants Newman and Sullivan were two of the men, the others being the two defendants who were acquitted and one Payne, who was indicted but not tried. All of the men had revolvers, and dark handkerchiefs over their faces. They gagged Sjogren and went through his pockets, though they took nothing from him. The machine was driven to Brainerd, with more or less of threats and shooting on the way. In Brainerd the five men conducted Sjogren to a room in a hotel, where they had refreshments. Sjogren was told that if he would not go back to the mines, but go home to Michigan, the men would let him go, but would shoot him full of holes if he ever came back or wrote to his friends in Crosby. Sjogren promised, and his captors left him in charge of Payne, one of the number. The others going back to Crosby, Payne, with the help of a revolver, kept Sjogren in charge saw that he bought a ticket for Duluth, and took the train with him. Payne got off at Deerwood, Sjogren continuing to Duluth.

It is manifest that this story, if believed, was sufficient to convict defendants of wilfully seizing, confining or inveigling Sjogren, with the intent to cause him without authority of law, to be secretly confined or imprisoned within the state. There is little room to question the substantial features of Sjogren's tale, as told above, and we are obliged to hold that conviction was justified by the evidence. We are not concerned with the motives of the men who thus attempted to get out of the way one of the committee of strikers. It is not pretended that they acted with any legal authority.

The only question in the case that merits special mention is one of evidence. This was the second trial. On the first defendant Newman testified on his own behalf. On this trial, the state offered his testimony given on the first trial. The attorney for all of the four defendants on trial entered a general objection that the testimony was incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. The objection was overruled, and defendants excepted.

It is claimed that the admission of this evidence was error as to defendant Newman on the ground that it was a violation of his constitutional privilege to refuse to incriminate himself. We cannot adopt this view. The evidence was given voluntarily on the former trial. We see no distinction between his declarations there under oath, and voluntary statements made out of court. He is not deprived of his constitutional privilege where the declarations offered against him were made voluntarily. It is otherwise where the statements offered were made under legal compulsion. The distinction is clearly perceived by comparing State v. Strait, 94 Minn. 384, and State v. Drew, 110 Minn. 243, the former a case of declarations made by a bankrupt in voluntary bankruptcy proceedings, which were held admissible, the latter a case where the declarations were made in involuntary proceedings and held inadmissible. The authorities elsewhere support the view that the evidence of Newman on the former trial was admissible as against him on this trial. 40 Cyc. 2541, and cases cited. Commonwealth v. McReynolds, 122 Mass. 454; People v. Kelly, 47 Cal. 125; People v. Arnold, 43 Mich. 303; State v. Gilman, 51 Mo. 206; State v. Witham, 72 Mo. 531; Dickerson v. State, 48 Wis. 288.

It is equally plain that Newman's testimony on the former trial was not admissible as against defendant Sullivan. This is conceded. But it was properly received as against Newman. It was a joint trial, defendants not availing themselves of their right to be tried separately. The evidence was therefore rightly in the case, but could not be used as against the defendants other than Newman. The court, on such a suggestion being made, would undoubtedly have so instructed the jury. But the attention of the court was in no way called to this situation by any request or suggestion from counsel. There was no error under the circumstances. It should be added that it is difficult in any event to see how the admission of this evidence prejudiced defendant Sullivan. He went on the stand himself and gave substantially the same story of the automobile ride and supper in Brainerd that Newman gave in his testimony on the former trial. Order affirmed. BUNN, J.

MANY SLOGANS RECEIVED

Chamber of Commerce Contest Desires Slogan to Epitomize the City

A slogan or motto, an epigram or phrase expressive of a city has become in recent years a popularity evidenced by the fact that a great number of the cities in this county have adopted some such motto to characterize a particular phase of their existence.

The first city to adopt such a method of advertising was Chicago and in an attempt to crystallize the atmosphere of this city of the great lakes the expression "I will" was adopted which has become almost synonymous with the word Chicago.

It is difficult to resist the temptation to group slogans into five separate and distinct classes.

There is the casual slogan; a general introduction to the entering stranger.

There is the persuasive slogan, a cordial invitation not only to enter but to share in the eminent prosperity of the city.

There is the assertive slogan: full of pride and sublimely conscious of its truth, directed to the outsider who knows not the tremendous advantages in this city.

There is the descriptive slogan: calculated to impress the stranger with the desirability, beauty and prosperity of the city.

There is the exhortative slogan: different from all others in that it is directed not to the outsider but to the people themselves.

PAID A GHOST'S DEBTS.

Old Woman's Superstition Brings Queer Case Before Judge.

An amazing story of an old woman's superstition came before Judge Drummond at Balleborough, county Cavan, in the course of an action brought by Miss Anne Brady against a local farmer named Connell.

The plaintiff said that in June last the defendant told her that the ghost of her brother Phil, who had been dead twenty-six years, was haunting him because he forgot to pay defendant 70 shillings he owed him. The witness was frightened and paid the money, which the defendant swore on "the poker and tongs" was due. The defendant said he, after Phil died, walked nine miles to the wake to see if he could get an opportunity of mentioning the debt, but he was not given a chance. He denied having said anything whatever about Phil's ghost. His Honor, in giving judgment, said he firmly believed the story.

"When we broke down, I saw," he ventured, with a backward jerk of his thumb to indicate the road, "a canyon branching off from this one about a quarter of a mile over yonder. If it's all the same to you people, we might stroll round that way and see what its natural attractions may be—if any. But it's sure a mighty poor sort of a canyon that doesn't lead anywhere—and nothing could possibly be more fatiguing to our mercurial and restless tempers than to squat down here and fold our hands in our laps and wait for something to turn up, and anyway we can't be worse off than we are—and."

"Sufficient!" Mr. Law interrupted with a bleak smile.

Crooking a deferential arm, Barcus offered it to Judith.

"Everything is lovely in the formal garden," he insisted—"so sweetly romantic. Are you game for an idle saunter, just to while the idle hours away?"

The woman found spirit enough for a wan smile as she tucked her hand gratefully beneath his arm.

"You're the cheerfulest soul I ever met," she said demurely. "What I'm going to do without you when—if ever—we get out of this awful business, goodness only knows."

"Let's talk of something else," he suggested hastily.

"Unless, of course," she pursued with unbroken gravity, "I marry you."

"Heaven!" the young man prayed fervently, "forfeit!"

"That is hardly gallant—"

"I mean—heaven forbid that you should throw yourself away!"

"Humph!" she mused. "Perhaps you're right."

Their banter was not without a subtle edge, namely, to reassure the girl who followed, supported by her lover's arm.

In the course of the last 24 hours Rose's jealousy of her sister's newfound friendliness with Alan had become acutely evident. The least courtesy which circumstances now and again demanded that he show Judith or seem a boor, was enough to cloud the countenance of Alan's betrothed.

Nor, indeed, was Rose altogether destitute of plausible excuse for this feeling. It was undeniable that between Alan and Judith a bond of sympathy had grown out of the trials and hardships they had of late suffered in common. It was undeniable—but even in his most private thoughts Alan denied it fiercely. Judith, on the other hand, not only acknowledged it freely to herself, but secretly derived a strangely sweet and poignant pleasure from the knowledge that she loved so madly and hopelessly.

That her love was hopeless she knew but too well. Even though Alan might not be altogether indifferent to her, after all that had passed between them, his loyalty to Rose was unshakable. And not for worlds would Rose's rival have had it otherwise. She could not have loved him as she did had he not been so unmovably true. As it was, since she could not hope her love might be returned, she was content to love and to promise herself that, if opportunity ever offered, she would not prove unready to sacrifice herself for her love.

And at times she caught herself praying that such opportunity would be accorded her, and quickly, and that the sacrifice it should demand would be complete.

Now prayers are sometimes answered when the boon craved is good for the soul.

Slowly and painfully these four toiled along an obscure trail that followed the windings of the little river, until a branch struck into the main stream and so discovered to them yet another trail leading into the westward canyon.

Then again slowly and painfully they plodded on following blindly another trail blazed by Fates as blind as they.

Above them, on the road they had abandoned, the crimson racer doubled back to the point where it had passed Judith and Barcus; its occupants descended, explored, and came presently upon the trail of the fugitives.

Bloodhounds could not have settled down upon a scent with more good will and eagerness than Mr. Marrophat and his faithful aide.

IMPORTANT BILLS BEFORE CONGRESS

Labor Leaders Working Hard For Reform Legislation.

TO RESTRICT IMMIGRATION.

Other Proposals Already Passed by House Giving Protection to American Workingmen Must Now Be Disposed of by Senate—Herrick Has Backers For G. O. P. Nomination.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Dec. 11.—[Special.]—The present session of congress, and particularly the senate, must face some questions involving labor or refuse consideration to a number of measures which have passed the house in the interest of labor.

In addition to the immigration bill, which is favored by the labor interests of the country, there are pending in the senate five measures which have passed the house and are strongly indorsed by labor organizations and by the representatives of labor that are located in Washington.

These bills are: To prevent the shipment of convict or prison made goods over interstate commerce lines; to create a bureau of labor safety; to prohibit the importation of prison made goods; to limit the hours of railway employees; to promote the welfare of American seamen.

Labor Men Insistent.

The representatives of labor in the capital, many of whom have been watching the course of legislation for a score of years, are insistent that some action shall be taken at the present session. Several members of the senate will strongly urge that the labor bills be considered, and they may make trouble for the majority if it is found necessary to side track them in the interest of getting through the appropriation bills before the close of the session.

A Change of Sentiment.

An important change of sentiment in the country may bring about the repeal of the high tax on butter other than that made from milk. The dairy interests throughout the country will oppose it strenuously, but the high price of butter, together with the fact that butterine and similar products can be purchased much cheaper, is bringing pressure to bear on congress, and it is possible that the law might be repealed.

They Mean Herrick.

As a general thing, when Republican politicians declare that they want a business man for president and assert positively that such a man will be nominated in 1916 they mean Myron T. Herrick of Cleveland, O. Mr. Herrick is a successful business man, having accumulated a large fortune. He has also shown a great deal of ability as ambassador to France during a trying period.

Herrick was one of the close friends of Mark Hanna and helped Hanna secure the nomination of William McKinley back in 1896. He is evidently the candidate of the "old guard," as nearly all of them have been associated with him in politics more or less during the past. The way they talk about Herrick now would seem to indicate that there is little hope for any of the Ohio men that have been mentioned, meaning Senator Burton, Governor Elect Willis and Senator Elect Harding.

A Very Live Wire.

Prohibition is becoming a live wire in politics. When Secretary Bryan says that the wets must be driven out of the Democratic party he has taken a position which will mean much in future Democratic conventions. It would not be surprising if there are many political graveyards waiting for men who will stand on one or the other side of the liquor question in the future.

Daniels Does His Share.

Secretary Daniels in the navy department is also doing his share toward placing the Democratic party on the prohibition side. Having abolished liquors on all ships and at naval stations, he has also taken a stand on moral questions that develop in the navy which makes him second only to Secretary Bryan as an evangelist.

The course of these two secretaries is not to be confounded with "the uplift," which has been the slogan of progressivism during the past few years. The uplift work in politics generally has had to do with general benefits of every character and description for the great mass of people and does not apply to religious, temperance and moral welfare.

Did Not Like the Tax.

William E. Chandler, former senator from New Hampshire, seems to be as intense a Republican as ever. "If the Democrats had put this emergency internal revenue tax in operation before the elections they would have gone down to a disastrous defeat," remarked Chandler. "Why didn't they postpone the imposition of these taxes and see whether they were really going to be needed or not? Why could they not have made provision to borrow money to cover any deficit and then afterward made provision for raising the money in a carefully considered bill instead of this makeshift measure, which is causing the people so much trouble?"

beautifully soft and fluffy, shampoo regularly with Ivory Soap. For, unlike many cleansers, Ivory Soap does not make the hair dry and brittle.

Make a warm suds with the paste. (See directions inside wrapper.) Saturate hair and scalp. Rub the scalp with the paste and dip the suds over it. Rinse with spray or cup, gradually cooling the water. Dry by rubbing, in the sun if possible, but do not use strong heat.

The Ivory Soap, because of its purity and mildness, does not affect the scalp's oily secretion, yet because of its wonderful cleansing power, it thoroughly absorbs the dirt and surplus oil. The rinsing, therefore, removes easily and entirely all this matter with the lather, leaving the hair in condition to dry soft, silky and glossy.

PAID A GHOST'S DEBTS.

Old Woman's Superstition Brings Queer Case Before Judge.

An amazing story of an old woman's superstition came before Judge Drummond at Balleborough, county Cavan, in the course of an action brought by Miss Anne Brady against a local farmer named Connell.

The plaintiff said that in June last the defendant told her that the ghost of her brother Phil, who had been dead twenty-six years, was haunting him because he forgot to pay defendant 70 shillings he owed him. The witness was frightened and paid the money, which the defendant swore on "the poker and tongs" was due. The defendant said he, after Phil died, walked nine miles to the wake to see if he could get an opportunity of mentioning the debt, but he was not given a chance. He denied having said anything whatever about Phil's ghost. His Honor, in giving judgment, said he firmly believed the story.

"Sufficient!" Mr. Law interrupted with a bleak smile.

Crooking a deferential arm, Barcus offered it to Judith.

"Everything is lovely in the formal garden," he insisted—"so sweetly romantic. Are you game for an idle saunter, just to while the idle hours away?"

The woman found spirit enough for a wan smile as she tucked her hand gratefully beneath his arm.

"You're the cheerfulness soul I ever met," she said demurely. "What I'm going to do without you when—if ever—we get out of this awful business, goodness only knows."

"Let's talk of something else," he suggested hastily.

"Unless, of course," she pursued with unbroken gravity, "I marry you."

"Heaven," the young man prayed fervently, "forfeit!"

"That is hardly gallant—"

"I mean—heaven forfeit that you should throw yourself away!"

"Humph!" she mused. "Perhaps you're right."

Their banter was not without a subtle object, namely, to reassure the girl who followed, supported by her lover's arm.

In the course of the last 24 hours Rose's jealousy of her sister's newfound friendliness with Alan had become acutely evident. The least courtesy which circumstances now and again demanded that he show Judith or seem a boor, was enough to cloud the countenance of Alan's betrothed.

Nor, indeed, was Rose altogether destitute of plausible excuse for this feeling. It was undeniable that between Alan and Judith a bond of sympathy had grown out of the trials and hardships they had of late suffered in common. It was undeniable—but even in his most private thoughts Alan denied it fiercely. Judith, on the other hand, not only acknowledged it freely to herself, but secretly derived a strangely sweet and poignant pleasure from the knowledge that she loved so madly and hopelessly.

That her love was hopeless she knew but too well. Even though Alan might not be altogether indifferent to her, after all that had passed between them, his loyalty to Rose was unshakable. And not for worlds would Rose's rival have had it otherwise. She could not have loved him as she did had he not been so unmovably true. As it was, since she could not hope her love might be returned, she was content to love and to promise herself that, if opportunity ever offered, she would not prove unready to sacrifice herself for her love.

And at times she caught herself praying that such opportunity would be accorded her, and quickly, and that the sacrifice it should demand would be complete.

Now prayers are sometimes answered when the boon craved is good for the soul.

Slowly and painfully these four toiled along an obscure trail that followed the windings of the little river, until a branch struck into the main stream and so discovered to them yet another trail leading into the westward canyon.

Then again slowly and painfully they plodded on following blindly another trail blazed by Fates as blind as they.

Above them, on the road they had abandoned, the crimson racer doubled back to the point where it had passed Judith and Barcus; its occupants descended, explored, and came presently upon the trail of the fugitives.

Bloodhounds could not have settled down upon a scent with more good will and eagerness than Mr. Marrophat and his faithful aide.

The sun was high and blazing above the canyon when the pursuit came within rifle shot of the chase.

A spiteful shot roused the quartet from a pause of lethargic dismay due to tardy appreciation of the fact that they had penetrated wittlessly almost to the end of a blind alley.

A hasty council of war armed Alan with Judith's revolver and posted him behind a boulder commanding the approaches to the chasm. The weapon, a powerful .45, had a range sufficient to numb the impetuosity of the assassins and keep them under cover and out of sight of the desperate essays the fugitives were making to compass an escape.

For in the shed behind an abandoned log cabin—souvenir, no doubt, of some forgotten prospector—Barcus had unearthed a length of stout hempen rope.

With the aid of a rusty shovel he had hacked this into two equal lengths. One of these lengths he proceeded to make fast around his own waist, then around Rose's. The other he left to be similarly employed by Alan and Judith. For it was agreed that they must climb, and while the cliff offered no problem to daunt a mountain climber of any pretensions, it was considered best that the fugitives should be hitched up in pairs against any possibility of a slip. The pairing had been determined by the fact that Barcus boasted some slight experience in mountaineering, while Rose was plainly the most exhausted of the two women, the least able to help herself in an emergency.

He had worked his cautious way, with the girl in tow, to a point midway up the face of the cliff, following a long diagonal that provided the easiest climbing, when Alan stole back to Judith and reported that, on the evidence of observation and belief, he was convinced that the pursuit had turned back—perhaps for want of ammunition, perhaps to execute some less hazardous attempt upon the lives of the fugitives.

Without delay, then, he made the free end of the rope fast around his own waist, and following the way Barcus had chosen, began the ascent.

Two-thirds of the climb had been accomplished, and Rose and Barcus had arrived in safety at the top, before the temptation to look down proved irresistible.

The Law's Delay.

"I understand that you called on the plaintiff, Mr. Barnes. Is that so?" questioned Lawyer Fuller, now Chief Justice.

"Yes," answered the witness.

"What did he say?" next demanded Fuller.

The attorney for the defense jumped to his feet and objected that the conversation could not be admitted in the evidence. A half-hour's argument followed, and the judges retired to their private room to consider the point.

An hour later the judges filed into the court room and announced that Mr. Fuller might put his question.

"Well, what did the plaintiff say, Mr. Barnes?"

"He weren't at home, str." came the answer without a tremor.—Success Magazine.

TO keep the hair beautifully soft and fluffy, shampoo regularly with Ivory Soap. For, unlike many cleansers, Ivory Soap does not make the hair dry and brittle.

Make a warm sud with the paste. (See directions inside wrapper.) Saturate hair and scalp. Rub the scalp with the paste and dip the suds over it. Rinse with spray or cup, gradually cooling the water. Dry by rubbing, in the sun if possible, but do not use strong heat.

The Ivory Soap, because of its purity and mildness, does not affect the scalp's oily secretion, yet because of its wonderful cleansing power, it thoroughly absorbs the dirt and surplus oil. The rinsing, therefore, removes easily and entirely all this matter with the lather, leaving the hair in condition to dry soft, silky and glossy.
